Shrewd insightfulness and astute problem-solving skills combined with warmth and friendliness make Ellen Harvey an ideal coach for executives in the demanding arena of international finance, the fast pace of Fortune 100 companies, and the pressure of high-level government agencies.

With 20 years of experience working with diverse leaders and multicultural teams, Ellen brings a smart approach grounded in research and real-world solutions. She connects particularly well with leaders with ambitious professional and personal goals who find themselves in the midst of complex and changing environments. Aply combining the strategic with the practical, Ellen possesses extensive expertise in most aspects of leadership and management development, including strategic vision and planning, innovation, productivity, and interpersonal relations.

Working with senior executives and their teams, Ellen helps clients develop focused goals, create solutions, and increase their capacity for growth and success. Ellen enables executives to lead with courage born from self-knowledge, effectively motivate their teams to realize their potential, and make wise decisions for the overall health of their organizations.

Some of Ellen's clients include the Inter-American Development Bank, the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank, Fannie Mae, Microsoft, Capital One, UBS, the National Institutes of Health, the United States Department of Agriculture, and the Brookings Institution.

Ellen earned her Ph.D. in counseling psychology from Catholic University and her bachelor's and master's degrees from Marshall University in West Virginia. A licensed psychologist in the state of Maryland, Ellen serves as Chief Assessor and Manager of Coaches for the National Leadership Institute, an affiliate of the Center for Creative Leadership, rated by the Wall Street Journal and US News and World Report as the country's best program for executive education.
